Subd. 9. Notices; introduction to private divorce; form. The commissioner shall make available the following form for use in the cooperative private divorce program:

NOTICE: Introduction to Cooperative Private Divorce

You are considering obtaining a Cooperative Private Divorce rather than going to court to get divorced. Cooperative Private Divorce is a simplified procedure for couples who want to avoid the expense, emotional strain, and arbitrary time frames that often accompany adversarial court proceedings. To obtain a Cooperative Private Divorce you will need to reach an agreement with your spouse about the issues in your divorce. Many public and private services are available to help you.

The Cooperative Private Divorce process is based on the assumption that most people have the capacity to divorce with respect and fairness if they are supported in that direction. To that end, a Cooperative Private Divorce differs in two important ways from a court divorce. First, the two of you have total control over your divorce and no one will oversee or scrutinize the decisions you make. Second, it is a completely private process.

This leaves you with a great deal of flexibility. After you have educated yourself, you can choose how detailed or simple to make your divorce decisions, and whether to postpone some decisions to a later time. You can also create your own understanding of fairness unique to your own situation.

These special features of a Cooperative Private Divorce, eliminating the anxiety of someone else having control over your family, and lessening the pressure to resolve everything all at once during a very stressful time, are intended to replace conflict with your spouse by creating a healthy transition for you and your family. You are encouraged to view each other as partners in creating the best solution for you and your family in parenting and financial matters.

Basic Principles

Cooperative Private Divorce is not for everyone. Because of the need to create a fair and healthy plan without coercion or oversight, it is intended for couples who can work together in good faith for the best interests of everyone in the family.

Here are the six principles underlying Cooperative Private Divorce. If you and your spouse believe you can fashion your divorce according to these principles, then a Cooperative Private Divorce may be the best procedure for you.

1. The preventing unnecessary divorce principle: You have reached a decision to initiate a divorce only after exhausting other options to solve your problems within your marriage, particularly if you have children.

2. The healthy relationships principle: If you have children, your parenting plan promotes safe, nurturing, and stable relationships among the children and with both of their parents.

3. The maximum parent involvement principle: Your parenting plan promotes high levels of involvement of both parents with the children when that is feasible and consistent with the needs of the children.

4. The equity principle: Your financial plan promotes equitable and sustainable lifestyles for all family members in light of the unique circumstances of your marriage and family.

5. The flexibility principle: Your divorce agreements take into account both the value of having stable arrangements and the likelihood that the needs and circumstances of your family will change over time.

6. The optimal timing principle: You create partial or comprehensive agreements with the timing and sequence that work best for you and your family.

Two Cautions

First, if you feel pressured or intimidated by your spouse to use this process or to agree to specific matters in your divorce, or if you have doubts generally about your spouse's willingness to reach agreements that are best for everyone in your family, consider getting professional assistance before going further.

Second, the flexibility of a Cooperative Private Divorce also leaves you with an important responsibility. Some couples have relatively simple issues to address in their divorce. But some couples have more complex financial and parenting matters to resolve. Financial matters are often more complex if you are self-employed or a business owner. If you do not consider such matters carefully, you may face problems such as having agreements that do not work over time or that are not enforceable. You are responsible to educate yourself about the issues in your divorce and to obtain professional assistance if you need it.

Professional and Community Resources

To begin with, recognize that going ahead with a divorce is a significant decision, especially if you have children. Many research studies have shown that divorce can have an adverse effect on children. If you want help to make sure you are making the right decision for you and your family, you can make use of services available in local communities.

If you have made the decision to go ahead with the divorce, you may choose to work with an advocate or with a facilitator who can guide you and your spouse in cooperative processes that focus on your interests and needs and what will work for your family. You may want to consult with an adviser on parenting or financial issues. From private sources you can obtain sample agreements that may help you frame all of the issues you will likely encounter. Although divorce can seem complex and difficult, these resources and professional services can help make it easier for you and your spouse to reach an agreement.

The Bureau of Mediation Services serves as a clearinghouse for information about the types of resources available. It also can provide information about services that are offered for free or on a sliding fee.

Subd. 10. Instructions; form. The commissioner shall make available the following form for use in the cooperative private divorce program:

Instructions for Cooperative Private Divorce

1. Both spouses obtain unique identifiers from the Bureau of Mediation Services.

2. Both spouses sign and submit the INTENT TO DIVORCE form with their unique identifiers to register with the Bureau of Mediation Services.

3. At any time at least 90 days after but not more than two years after submitting the INTENT TO DIVORCE form, submit the Declaration of Divorce form signed by both spouses.

4. Upon submitting the Declaration of Divorce form, both spouses will receive a certification that your marriage is dissolved.

5. Most complete divorce agreements address the issues set forth in the Declaration of Divorce form. It is up to you whether you want to record agreements in all or any of these areas. But recognize that if your agreements are vague or incomplete or if you do not record your agreements, it may be difficult for you to recall them, live up to your obligations, or later ask a court to enforce an agreement. Use attachments if you want to record agreements that are longer than space here permits. No one will review or approve the agreements you set forth here before your divorce is certified; they are for your use only.

6. At any time, either spouse can retrieve the Declaration of Divorce form containing your agreements by providing your unique identifier. No one except you and your spouse will have access to this form.

7. At any time, you and your former spouse can retrieve the Declaration of Divorce form, make additions or modifications that you both agree to, and resubmit it.

8. If you want to modify your previous agreements but you and your former spouse cannot agree on the modifications, or if you want to seek enforcement of a previous agreement, you are encouraged to seek assistance from professionals in the community who specialize in helping former spouses reach fair agreements. You also have the option of going to court where you would submit your Declaration of Divorce form.

9. Remember that by creating a smooth family transition now and working on issues that may arise in the future, developing a trustworthy working relationship with your spouse will be just as helpful as written agreements.

Subd. 11. Intent to divorce; declaration of divorce; form. The commissioner shall make available the following form for use in the cooperative private divorce program:

(A comprehensive plan would include: (a) how you will make important decisions like those about school, health care, and religion; (b) how you will allocate your time with the children during the school year, the summer, holidays, and vacations to provide a nurturing environment and rich relationships with both of you; and (c) how you will communicate with each other and work out differences of opinion.)

9.7 We agree to deviate from the guideline child support amount after considering the 9.8 following factors that support deviation (Make a check or "X" on all that apply):

- 9.9 each of our earnings, income, circumstances, and resources, including our 9.10 real and personal property, but excluding income from excess employment
9.11 of the obligor or obligee that meets the criteria of Minnesota Statutes,

- 9.13 the extraordinary financial needs and resources, physical and emotional 9.14 condition, and educational needs of our child(ren) to be supported;

- 9.31 We will be sharing the following children's expenses: (list items) with 9.32 paying ... percent and paying ... percent; or
- 9.33 We agree that no child support will be exchanged between us, as we are 9.34 each paying the children's expenses directly.

9.35 Make a check or "X" on all that apply:

- 9.36 We agree to modify the amount of child support from time to time as our 9.37 circumstances may change.
- 9.38 We agree to a biennial adjustment in the amount of child support to be 9.39 paid based on cost-of-living changes using a cost-of-living index published
9.40 by the Department of Labor.

(If either parent is receiving public assistance, the county attorney must approve this agreement or it is not enforceable. The county attorney may ask the court to modify any child support agreement you make if a minor or dependent child receives or begins to receive public assistance.)

Caution

If your ex-spouse does not pay you the child support agreed upon in the declaration of divorce, you should act promptly to address the matter because if you decide to go to court, the court may not order the payment of arrears.

3. We agree to the following plan for providing health insurance for our children.

4. We agree to the following plan for paying off our debts. (This agreement will not change your obligations to any creditor; it is simply an agreement between the two of you about who will be paying a debt.)

5. We agree to the following plan for dividing our property and assets. (If an allocation of assets or debts, or an allocation of both, deviates from a nearly equal division, provide the reasons for the allocation. Educate yourself about the difference between marital and nonmarital property.)

a. Real estate (Include who will pay any mortgages, agreements to refinance a mortgage, and make provisions for recording necessary documents with the county recorder. This declaration of divorce does not transfer an interest in real estate. To transfer interest in real estate, you must prepare a quitclaim deed, or a summary real estate disposition judgment for the court administrator, either of which you would need to file with the county recorder. It is advisable to seek professional assistance about this process.)

b. Personal property, such as household furnishings, vehicles, and other objects you own.

c. Financial assets, such as retirements, investments, stock, bank accounts, and business interests. (This declaration of divorce has no effect on the division of a retirement account or pension plan unless the account or plan receives proper instructions. Many retirement assets cannot be divided unless they receive a qualified domestic relations order from a court. Often a draft of such an order is approved by the pension plan administrator before it is submitted to the court. It is advisable to seek professional assistance about this process.)

6. We agree to the following schedule of payments for spousal support (alimony) which end upon the death of either of us or the remarriage of the payee spouse. (If there is a large difference in your incomes and you agree to a minimal amount or no amount of spousal support, provide the reasons for the spousal support agreement. For purposes of federal tax deductibility, this agreement is deemed to be a divorce or separation instrument. Be aware that, upon motion, a court has the authority to modify the amount of spousal support you agree on here at any time during the time period in which spousal support is being paid.)

7. We agree to the following plan to maintain health insurance coverage for both spouses. (If one spouse is interested in continuing health insurance coverage under the other spouse's employer-provided policy, certain laws apply, including a requirement that an election must be made and submitted to the other spouse's employer and health insurance carrier within 60 days of your divorce.)

8. We agree to the following plan for paying any past joint tax liability or future tax liability, or both, and we agree to the following plan for who will claim the child or dependency exemptions or credits for our child or children.

9. We have reached the following additional agreements which we wish to record:

(You may not use the cooperative private divorce program to legally change a name. A name can be changed by a court only.)

Dissolution

We hereby agree to the dissolution of our marriage according to the preceding terms. We hereby warrant that we have made complete disclosure to each other of all information and documents that are important to these agreements, and that the list of assets and debts contained in paragraph (1) are complete and accurate and there are no open court cases involving these issues.

14.8 ARTICLE 2
14.9 CONFORMING CHANGES

14.10 Section 1. Minnesota Statutes 2018, section 62A.21, subdivision 2a, is amended to read:

14.11 Subd. 2a. Continuation privilege. Every policy described in subdivision 1 shall contain
14.12 a provision which permits continuation of coverage under the policy for the insured's
14.13 dependent children, which is defined as required by section 62A.302, and former spouse,
14.14 who was covered on the day before the entry of a valid decree of dissolution of marriage
14.15 or a certificate of marital dissolution. The coverage shall be continued until the earlier of 14.16 the following dates:

14.17 ~~(a)~~ (1) the date the insured's former spouse becomes covered under any other group
14.18 health plan; or

14.19 ~~(b)~~ (2) the date coverage would otherwise terminate under the policy.

14.20 If the coverage is provided under a group policy, any required premium contributions
14.21 for the coverage shall be paid by the insured on a monthly basis to the group policyholder
14.22 for remittance to the insurer. The policy must require the group policyholder to, upon request,
14.23 provide the insured with written verification from the insurer of the cost of this coverage
14.24 promptly at the time of eligibility for this coverage and at any time during the continuation 14.25 period. In no event shall the amount of premium charged exceed 102 percent of the cost to 14.26 the plan for such period of coverage for other similarly situated spouses and dependent 14.27 children with respect to whom the marital relationship has not dissolved, without regard to 14.28 whether such cost is paid by the employer or employee.

14.29 Upon request by the insured's former spouse, who was covered on the day before the
