

vision of a probation officer in counties where such officer is provided by law, and in other counties under the supervision of some discreet person who will accept such supervision and serve without pay, making report to the court as required. Provided, however, that nothing herein contained shall prevent the court from placing such persons under the supervision of a constable, sheriff or police officer specially detailed for that purpose. The court may make such terms and conditions of probation as are deemed suitable and may require a recognizance or other surety conditioned upon the performance of such terms and conditions and may enforce the same. On the expiration of the original period of probation the court may from time to time renew or extend the same for additional definite periods upon such conditions as are deemed proper, provided, the total period of such suspension of sentence shall not exceed one year except in case of conviction of a crime the maximum penalty for which is imprisonment for a term exceeding one year, and in such case such total period of suspension of sentence shall not exceed the term of such maximum penalty. The court may in its discretion suspend sentence indefinitely. The court may make such order in or out of term, and at any place within the judicial district in which the case was tried.

May be released on probation without notice.—Sec. 3. Before sentence has been indefinitely suspended the court shall have power, in the exercise of its discretion, to revoke the order staying sentence and releasing such person on probation, without notice and at any time or place mentioned in section two (2) of this act, stating in such order of revocation the reasons therefor; in which case the sentence theretofore imposed shall be executed in all respects as though no proceedings under this act has been taken.

Sec. 4. This act shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage.

Approved April 22, 1909.
