Literal meaning of a statute is not always conclusive. There must be resort to construction when words, otherwise plain, result in ambiguity when applied to their subject matter. Ambiguity in a government grant will be resolved in favor of the government. A fair construction of Laws 1931, Chapter 405, does not entitle petitioner to relief under the Spanish war veterans' relief law. State ex rel v Walsh, 188 M 412, 247 NW 523.

Laws 1919, Chapter 192, does not violate the equality provisions of the constitution, nor does it authorize the removal of a prior appointee to make place for a soldier, nor abrogate civil service rules giving precedence in order of employment. State ex rel v Matson, 155 M 137, 193 NW 30.

A provision that an appointee shall be removed only for cause does not prevent municipal officials from abolishing the position an appointee holds, thereby terminating his service, if their action be taken in good faith and not merely for the purpose of ousting him. State ex rel v Matson, 155 M 137, 193 NW 30.

When an appointment is to be made within the classified service of the city of St. Paul, the civil service commissioner shall certify to the appointing officer the required number of names of persons who have passed examination. The commissioner must include in the certified list the names of those who received the highest rank in the examination, leaving it to the appointing officer to determine which one of the persons is entitled to appointment under Laws 1919, Chapter 192, commonly known as the soldiers preference act. State ex rel v Scott, 163 M 190, 203 NW 774.

The market master of the city of Virginia is within the preference statute. The statute is constitutional. The trial court found that the relator was fit and qualified to discharge the duties of the employment for which he applied. This is not enough to entitle him to relief on mandamus. A finding supported by evidence that the appointing body did not make the investigation, or that its action was the result of manifest arbitrariness, was necessary. State ex rel v Empie, 164 M 14, 204 NW 572.

The soldiers' preference law does not apply to an officer who is the head of a department. State ex rel v City Council of Mpls., 167 M 240, 208 NW 1005.

Where an appointment is to be made under civil service rules which require the civil service commissioner to certify the three having the highest rating on the eligible list and require the appointing officer to select one of those three, an applicant who is not one of the three is not entitled to the appointment, although within the soldiers preference act. State ex rel v Scott, 171 M 208, 213 NW 738.

The soldiers preference act does not require formal notice to the employer of the status of an employee. It is sufficient if the officer or board has knowledge of the preference rights of the employee at the time the attempt is made to remove the employee. The city fireman's employment had not expired at the time of the attempted removal, and he was protected by the soldiers preference act, and could not be removed without notice and hearing. The word "towns" includes villages. State ex rel v Village of Chisholm, 173 M 485, 217 NW 681.

There must be a failure on the part of the council to act, or arbitrary action on the part of the council, before the court will interfere. In this case the evidence sustains the findings that the council did not make an investigation contemplated by the soldiers preference act and acted with manifest arbitrariness. State ex rel v Brandt, 178 M 277, 226 NW 841.

The evidence justified the court in finding that the position of superintendent of waterworks of the city of Eveleth came within the provisions of the soldiers preference act, and relator was entitled to the position. The occupant is not the head of a department, and the position is not within the statutory exception. State ex rel v City of Eveleth, 179 M 99, 228 NW 447.

School districts are not subject to the provisions of the soldiers preference act. Holmquist v Ind. School Dist. 181 M 23, 231 NW 406.

The Reorganization Act Laws of 1925, Chapter 426, being subsequent to the passage of the soldiers preference act, superseded that act as far as this case is concerned, and the appointment of an assistant public examiner is at the pleasure of the comptroller, and the relator was not entitled to a preference. State ex rel v Rines, 185 M 49, 239 NW 670.

Laws 1929, Chapter 57, is complete in itself and controlling, and as far as this case is concerned, supersedes the soldiers preference act. State ex rel v McDonald, 185 M 194, 240 NW 361.

A county highway engineer is not within the operation of the soldiers preference employment act. State ex rel v Walleen, 185 M 329, 241 NW 318.

VETERANS' REWARDS AND PRIVILEGES 197.45

Laws 1931, Chapter 347, was passed for the express purpose of superseding the regulations under Laws 1929, Chapter 57, and for the purpose of making the soldiers preference act effective. The veteran in this case is entitled to have his name placed on a certified list from which appointments were to be made in the Hibbing fire department. State ex rel v McDonald, 188 M 157, 246 NW 900.

Where the plaintiff was employed in the city clerk's office under the title of deputy city clerk, and the council purported to abolish that office, but the same work plaintiff had theretofore done remained to be done in the city clerk's office, he was on his application as an honorably discharged soldier with preference rights entitled to be retained or reappointed to do that work as against one, who for political reasons, received the appointment but had no preference rights whatever. This holding is within the general rule that there can be no de facto officer unless there is a de jure office for him to fill. State ex rel v City of Eveleth, 189 M 229, 249 NW 184.

Rejection by the city council of the city of Virginia of the application of one claiming under the soldiers preference law, on adequate evidence having been found not arbitrary, will not be disturbed on appeal. State ex rel v Barker, 190 M 370, 251 NW 673.

The finding of a district court jury that the village council of Bovey arbitrarily rejected a veteran's application for employment is not justified by the evidence, and the decision of the lower court is reversed. State ex rel v Village of Bovey, 191 M 401, 254 NW 456.

The courts cannot by mandamus control the exercise of discretion vested in a public official or commission, but may determine whether on a given state of facts and under the laws and rules applicable thereto a commission or an official had any discretionary power. In this case eight firemen were appointed according to examination ratings. The relator stood at the head of the list with the highest rating. It became necessary to discharge three of these firemen to make places for three veterans who had, by judgment of the court, been found to be entitled to appointment as firemen. It was the duty of the commission in discharging these three men to give effect to their rating on the eligible list, and it was error for the commission to discharge the relator. State ex rel v Ritchel, 192 M 63, 255 NW 627.

The position of municipal court officer is subject to the soldiers and sailors preference law. State ex rel v City of Eveleth, 194 M 44, 260 NW 223.

The attorney general has power to employ such assistants, whether lay, legal, or expert, as he may deem necessary; and the soldiers preference acts are not controlling in respect to the appointment of an inheritance tax examiner. State ex rel v Peterson, 194 M 60, 259 NW 696.

Exempting from the application of soldiers preference laws the position of private secretary or deputy of any official or department, or any person holding a "strictly confidential" relation to the appointing officer does not apply to the position of assistant chief of the fire department of the city of Duluth. State ex rel v Fisher, 194 M 75, 259 NW 694.

The provision that a service man shall not be removed from his public "position or employment except for incompetency or misconduct shown after a hearing, upon due notice, upon stated charges" does not apply where the office itself is terminated and the occupant is let out for that reason alone. The preference act, however, does not give a service man the right to remain in employment as against another competent employee in the same grade of service who is senior to the service man when for lack of funds, the employment of one of them must be terminated. State ex rel v City of Duluth, 195 M 563, 262 NW 681, 263 NW 912, 266 NW 736.

Where the city police civil service commission classified all police employees of the city and the classification made is alleged to be erroneous, the proper remedy is certiorari to review the classification and not mandamus to compel a reclassification. State ex rel v Ernest, 197 M 599, 268 NW 208.

Relator, as employee of the village of Hibbing, was charged with disobedience to his superiors in authority and upon a hearing before the village council was found guilty and discharged. The decision was reviewed on certiorari by the district court, and affirmed. The decision of the village council is well sustained by the evidence. State ex rel v Twigg, 203 M 74, 279 NW 828.

An action against members of the state industrial commission to compel reinstatement of a dismissed employee is triable in Ramsey county where the commission maintains its office. State ex rel v District Court, 206 M 54, 287 NW 601.

A remedy is subject to change or destruction by legislative action. Relator did not possess a vested right in his employment, but he is within his rights in contesting his discharge. As far as relator is concerned, there was repeal of the veterans preference act upon the passage of the state civil service act. Relator can, however, apply to the civil service board for a declaration of status. State ex rel v Stassen, 208 M 523, 294 NW 647.

Where city council had notice that relator was an honorably discharged veteran when he was employed in 1935, and where his employment was continuous, he could not be discharged without notice and hearing as provided in section 197.46. There was no waiver of his right because he had filed a new application each year, including the year 1939. State ex rel v city of Bemidji, 209 M 91, 295 NW 514.

A statute which expressly supersedes an earlier one is a repeal thereof. The state civil service act declares that it shall prevail in the field of veterans' preference in spite of the general saving clause of the preference law, and the result is that the remedy of mandamus under the veterans preference law was taken away. State ex rel v Railroad & Warehouse Comm. 209 M 530, 296 NW 906.

Where the legislature has provided expressly a method for suspension and removal of two classes of county employees and has made no provision as to a third class, the court will not supply the omitted legislation. Mandamus under veterans preference act denied. State ex rel v County of St. Louis, 216 M 140, 12 NW(2d) 193.

Under veterans preference act, a sprinkler's helper employed on a five-day-week basis has no preferential rights over other veterans on a two-day-week position. State ex rel v Village of Hibbing, 217 M 342, 14 NW(2d) 343.

Extra Session Laws 1933, Chapter 67, which provides an appropriation for direct relief, work relief, and employment to needy, destitute, and disabled persons is valid against the following objections: that the title embraces more than one subject; that it appropriates taxes for a private as distinguished from a public purpose; that it authorizes the state to carry on works of internal improvement; that it creates a public debt in contravention of the constitution; and, that it lends the state's credit in violation of the constitution. Moses v Olson, 192 M 173, 255 NW 617.

reasonably sufficient to sustain such findings, and in this case the evidence sustains the finding that the plaintiff was not qualified by ability, judgment, or experience to properly fill the position of road patrol foreman in the road maintenance department of St. Louis county. The courts cannot by mandamus control the exercise of discretion vested in a public official or commission, but may determine whether, on a given state of facts and under the law and rules applicable thereto, a commission or official had any discretion.
