138.025 Transfer of control of certain historic sites.

Subdivision 1. Authority. The authority of the commissioner of natural resources, or any successor thereto, to administer and control the historic sites enumerated in this section is withdrawn, and is hereby conferred upon the Minnesota historical society. The society shall exercise the general administration and control of such sites, preserve their historic features, conduct archaeological investigations, establish necessary interpretive centers, and perform such additional duties and services at such sites as may be deemed necessary and beneficial to such sites. The commissioner of natural resources shall continue to administer and control the state parks enumerated in this section excepting the portions thereof designated as historic sites, the administration and control of which is by this section vested in the Minnesota historical society. The Minnesota historical society may contract with existing state departments and agencies for such materials and services, including utility services, as may be necessary for the administration and maintenance of the sites listed in this section.
